

LEMONADE LIVING

making life sweet!

2019 december

It's been a busy year for Lemonade Living ... and a very good year!

Roundtable Partners Make Life Sweet!

This spring, several local organizations that also serve the developmental disabilities and special needs community joined with us to form Roundtable. Together we provide a variety of social, therapy, educational and occupational opportunities to our clients. We collaborate on projects and grants to bring scholarship opportunities to our community and to assist families with enrollment into state and federal programs. We coordinate with each other to offer programs, to identify service gaps and to avoid redundancies. We are extremely grateful for our group of dedicated, top-notch partners.

Volunteers Install Goat Fence

Thanks to a donation from 100+ Women Who Care for the cost of supplies and the muscle and sweat of dedicated volunteers, a goat fence was built on one of our lots at North Mesa Stables. The fence worked wonderfully for a guest herd of goats we hosted in late summer. We look forward to acquiring our own herd and to the education and therapy for our clients that will come from working with these animals.

Students Make it Sweet at Rose Chocolatier

This October, Marguerite McClay graciously and generously donated her chocolate shop, Rose Chocolatier, to Lemonade Living. It is proving to be a perfect setting for our Jobs Training Program in collaboration with Los Alamos Public Schools. Students in Los Alamos High School's Living Skills Program are already in the shop learning customer service skills, cash register operation, chocolate making, baking and how a small business operates.

Jobs Training Program Director Robyn Collom reports that our collaboration with LAPS has provided her and her staff a flexibility that they have been looking for in a jobs training program for students. Also, she says, the students love working at Rose Chocolatier and are performing better than expected.

We look forward to partnering with New Mexico Workforce Connection to expand this program so we can offer ongoing employment.
